

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method for correcting misregistration of scanned thin line character components includes detecting a misregistered pixel; determining whether the misregistered pixel is part of a character; applying a three-dimensional color vector determinant to the misregistered pixel, and 5 reducing the chrominance component of the misregistered pixel to provide a corrected pixel.

A copy of the document is filed in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.